

MinShed is a innovation project financed by FORMAS with the goal to create knowledge and guidelines which will help the textile industry to design and create clothes made of synthetic fabrics which mitigates emission of microplastics. The project will also investigate how washing machines are designed to reduce the emissions of microplastics. MinShed is coordinated by RISE and will go on between the years 2018-2020.